FROM SALLY'S DIARY—THE

RAID.

September 16. I awoke in the middle of last night hearing a pounding in the air, loud and loud. It was not the French drums we know their regular pounding to my window. It was a light moonlight. Down in the garden I heard voices—the old people who live in this house—and at last I saw them. They were coming out of the hospital. "The hospital! It is the hospital. They have bombed it—ah-h mon Dieu!"

And they ran about, horrified.

I looked on my clothes and with a start to them, I would send a message. I fled along the road to our inclosure, my feet twisting in the deep ruts, my cape flapping wild in the night wind. I made out a small figure in the distance near the building, and then I saw!

The German raiders had dropped incendiary bombs upon our hospital and had mostly fallen wild, but several had penetrated the roof of the building, used for supplies and surgical dressings, setting it afire and one had struck Shack 2, just next to mine.

There was scarcely any disorder.

The fire was under control, thanks to the quick action of the hospital nurses. The head nurse and the different night nurses from the shacks, aided by orderlies, were salvaging the stores.

Dr. Will and other surgeons were there, half dressed, working like mad over three prone figures on the grass. Two were wounded men, struck in their beds with new and deadly wounds. But living, thank God!

The third was my old, faithful, willing, never again to let me leave him, my old friend, my old comrade, and his gay "Don Juan, petite maman! Comment ça va?" My gentle old Gaston, my shack's "right hand," is that German airman's prize.

If ever a blasting curse rose from my heart it was at I beheld that scene. My first realization of the depths of war crime! And my old Red Cross flag lying so confidently, that all might see, that all might see!

SOLDIERS FROM CAMP GRANT PASS THROUGH CITY THIS MORNING

Janesville was this morning visited by the soldiers from the 31st Division, who are being sent to Camp Grant. Their total number was fourteen men, and they were under the command of Lieut. Van Austin. Seven of the men were left in Janesville, where they will erect a wireless station at the Fair Grounds. The other seven will go to Madison, where they will also erect a wireless station. One section of the 31st Division left Janesville at 6:30 o'clock, and reached Janesville at ten thirty. On the return trip, of the section sent to Madison, they will pick up the seven men left at the fair grounds. Although it was raining heavily, the men, from all indications, were in the best of spirits. They expect to leave Janesville on Thursday, when they will start on their way back to Camp Grant.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, July 15.—The marriage of Miss Anna O'Brien and her fiancé, Mr. John O'Brien, took place at Rockford. The bride is the daughter of Joe O'Brien and has lived here all of her life. She has been an able assistant in the office of her father, who has made this city his home, having attended Normal, and his teaching at Waukegan, until May 25, when he was called to Camp Grant by the doctor.

Edward Dammun and Thane Blackman, Jr., are attending the Y. M. C. A. camp at Phantom Lake. Dammun and Blackman, Jr., and family moved here from Crystal Falls, Mich., Saturday and after a short stop, went on the Chicago, taking his mother, Mrs. M. Conlin with them.

Alvin Halgerson, Ora Blissett and Percy O'Neil were up from Camp Grant, Sunday.

Halgerson and Blissett returned by the Chicago, and O'Neil was taken as far as Janesville, accompanied by Jas. O'Neil, Lyle and Miss Edith, and Emery Fuller.

JANESVILLE CHURCHES CELEBRATE BASTILLE DAY WITH SERVICES

FRENCH NATIONAL HOLIDAY APPROPRIATELY CELEBRATED IN THIS CITY WITH UNION SERVICES HELD AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

SPLENDID TALK GIVEN

Rev. F. F. Lewis in Foreword Address "Tells of America's Indebtedness to French Republic, 'Mar-sellaise' Sung.

The national holiday of France was appropriately celebrated on last evening by a union of the different church societies in a service held in the Presbyterian church.

A foreword address made by Rev. F. F. Lewis called attention to the great indebtedness of America to the French republic, and to the bonds which united the two nations in a close tie of friendship.

Taking as his topic the motto of France at the time of the French revolution, "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity," the speaker showed how these mottoes which are put into the granite of so many of the public buildings of France, were also indelibly engraved on the hearts of the people, and through all the tempestuous days through which this country had passed, it had been their bright and guiding star.

A brief resume of the history of France during the time of the present government was given by the speaker in which he outlined some of the salient features of some of the struggles through which this nation has passed, and which, he said, "has gone through greater upheavals, or had endured more trials and blood shed, in the cause of freedom and democracy, than any other nation in the world."

Outlining the fact that the overthrow of the Bastille, where so many political exiles had suffered, and the dawn of democracy, the speaker also emphasized the thought that the struggles and final destiny of this nation was bound up inextricably with the French republic. "We have come to see," said the speaker, "that the French revolution, which caused the French republic, and our American constitution, are largely a product of the great minds of the statesmen of Europe, who were living in France at that time. One great incident in history," he said, "links the country of France with the problems of America and has become deeply interested in the struggle for liberty which this country is making. The French republic, which was born in Washington, and his aid had become a vital factor in winning the war for independence."

"Lafayette had become," said the speaker, "the central figure in our nation's conflict, and has tied the French republic to ours with indissoluble bands."

A vivid picture was given by the speaker of the German emperor, clothed in all the pomp of imperial robes, waiting on a hill top, for the signal that his armies were victorious. He saw the German emperor, who had studied the problems of America and had become deeply interested in the struggle for liberty which this country is making. The French republic, which was born in Washington, and his aid had become a vital factor in winning the war for independence."

"We have come to see," said the speaker, "that the French revolution, which caused the French republic, and our American constitution, are largely a product of the great minds of the statesmen of Europe, who were living in France at that time. ROCKFORD SOLDIERS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED IN CITY YESTERDAY

CAMP GRANT MEN SPENDING WEEK-END IN JANESVILLE TREATED TO SUNDAY DINNER AT DIFFERENT HOMES IN CITY.

WILL OPEN CLUB ROOM

Places on South Main St. Next to Library Will Be Furnished and Opened As Club Room for Fighting Men.

A cordial welcome and a taste of home cooking was given the soldiers from Camp Grant who came to the city for Sunday, and who cared to be entertained in that way. Forty-five were registered and assigned to different homes where they were guests for Sunday dinners, many of them being given auto rides or entertained in other ways, during the afternoon. Pursuant to the tentative plans formed during the week by the Sunday Hospitality committee, a group of people, both ladies and men, and the incoming Rockford cars, and passed out cards to the soldiers, inviting them to register at the Chamber of Commerce, and receive assignment of places for Sunday entertainment. The cards read: "The Janesville Sunday Hospitality committee of the Chamber of Commerce will be glad to entertain soldiers at Sunday dinner while they are in town. Please register at the Chamber of Commerce office, 114 East Milwaukee street. The group comprising the welcoming committee were stationed at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, where they were given a card bearing the address of the place where they were to be entertained. The soldiers, without exception, seemed very grateful and much pleased that people were enough interested in them, to care about their comfort. The register showed that the most common name in the northern part of the state. One boy living near Wausau, said he had been at Camp Grant for ten months, and had been home only once, and that was last Christmas. One came from Kentucky, one from New York City and several from Chicago. They were well-mannered fellows, who seemed to be glad to be in town, and who were interested in them. One hostess entertained three, whom she said still flitted her auto for the afternoon drive planned for by her friends. The boys were entertained in humble homes, where the welcome was just as cordial, had just as good a time. One mother with two boys in the service, had two stalwart lads as her guests and gave them a real taste of home mothering, as her gift to the cause.

Splendid co-operation has been given everyone to this idea, and proffers to aid the plan have been universal. The idea, which started in a committee meeting of the City Federation, has been spread until it has taken in members of the Service Welfare League and of the Chamber of Commerce. As it now stands, it is composed of Mrs. H. H. Bliss, chairman, with Mrs. S. M. Smith, Mrs. J. G. Bridges, Mrs. J. A. Craig, Mrs. W. S. Sayles, Miss Ruth Jeffries, and Miss Josephine Doty Harrison. The committee are Mrs. F. C. Burpee, Sidney Gwistwick, Father William, H. H. Bliss and C. A. Musgrave.

A generous offer of the use of the small store near the library on South Main by the owner, A. E. Schaller, has been made and it will be the headquarters for the soldiers. Here they can read and smoke, and write letters, during their stay in the city, and make it a general headquarters for the soldiers to come and go as desired. This will be a great convenience to them, especially during stormy weather, and its location makes it especially convenient for the purpose. The plans of the committee also contemplate some sort of simple, wholesome entertainment for Saturday evenings. The committee are now in contact with the better people of the city.

on the Marne front the Germans through many bridges across the river. Over these the Germans are passing under a withering fire from the artillery and German progress is being stayed by the machine gunners. The Americans and their French comrades have resisted the enemy to the utmost and are continuing their character of resistance. It is clear the German attack in the Vaux region completely broke down under the American counter attack. Shape fighting is likely to develop in this area at any time hereafter.

Mammoth Stroke.

Official report relative to the grand offensive begun this morning against the Germans shows that it is the most ambitious stroke since March 21 when the Germans launched their assault against the British line in the vicinity of Arras to La Perche.

Fifty-Mile Front.

The front in the March 21 offensive was reported to be about fifty-five miles in length. Traces over which the Germans are attacking today is approximately fifty miles from Chateau-Thierry on the west of Massiges in the Champagne. On the east the Germans followed their most recent tactics of beginning the offensive. There was a brief artillery preparation of great violence and then came the advance of the troops.

Paris.—A new offensive by the Germans was begun last night in the region between Rheims and the Argonne. The attack was made on a front of about eighty kilometers approximately fifty miles.

On the front between Chateau-Thierry and the Argonne the Germans attacked this morning the war office announces. The French are meeting the shock of the enemy attack with energy and the battle continues.

British Gain.

London.—In an operation carried out last night the British position on the Western Front was improved. The war office announced today. A few prisoners were taken.

Artillery Active.

London.—The enemy's artillery displayed activity in the region south of Arras and on the Flanders front north of Bethune and in the Loos Diksbush sector.

British Attack.

London.—The British attack in Flanders yesterday, the statement from the British war office, was a surprise and was successful. All the material captured has yet been collected.

GAS TANK EXPLODES IN FACE; EYESIGHT IS NEAR DESTROYED

Fred Burton Nearly Loses Eyesight Accident Saturday Afternoon—Now Healing Easy.

Exploding full in his face, a leaky acetylene gas tank came near destroying the eyesight of Fred Burton, when ignited by the oxy-acetylene flame, with which he was engaged in welding work at his windmill and well supply shop at 111 North Jackson street, shortly after 3 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. It was feared Saturday night that Burton would lose the sight of one eye, as a result of the accident, but physicians attending stated that both eyes would be saved.

The accident happened while Mr. Burton was doing some welding work near the acetylene tank, which he had taken a small amount of gas, however, and leaked through a small hole in one end. The gas escaping from this hole was ignited by the oxy-acetylene flame in Mr. Burton's hands, and the result was that the tank exploded as he bent toward it, striking him full in the face. Medical attention was called at once, and he was hurried to the hospital, where he is now reported as resting easy. The small amount of gas in the supposedly empty tank, alone, saved Mr. Burton from very serious injury.

Tales of the Friendly
Forest

"Well, here we are in to-night's story," said the old gentleman rabbit, as he looked over his spectacles at the little bunny. You see, they had got home safely after their automobile ride, and the old gentleman rabbit was reading the "Janesville Gazette," and wasn't it funny, there was a story about him and his little new-right on the front page. And a picture, too, and the old gentleman's wedding stovetop had looked almost as good as new, and this made him feel quite happy, for he was very fond of his old hat, was dear, kind Uncle Lucky.

And just then the telephone bell rang so Billy Bunny hopped over to the desk where Uncle Lucky has his telephone and said "Hello!"

"Is Mr. Lucky Lethindfoot there?" asked a voice, and, oh, dear me, it was a dreadfully growly kind of a voice.

"Wait a minute! Hold the wire!"

and then the little rabbit, who had been talking to his uncle and whispered in his ear that some body with a dreadfully cross voice wanted to see him.

"Don't you who it is," said the old gentleman rabbit, and he took off his blue spectacles and wiped them on his blue polka-dot handkerchief, and then put them away in his case. So Billy Bunny picked up the receiver and said: "Who wants to see him?"

"I do," said the growly voice, "and if he doesn't come to the phone I'll come over and knock on the front parlor window pane."

And then of course the little rabbit didn't know what to do, and I'm sure I wouldn't have either, and maybe neither would you.

"Oh, pshaw!" cried the brave old gentleman rabbit, and he took the telephone in his front paw and said:
 "Hello! Hello! Who wants to see Mr.
 Lucky Lethindfoot?"

"So you're there, are you?" answered the growly voice. "Well, I'll be over in three short seconds." And that was all.

"Look the front door," said Uncle Lucky, "and pull down the shades. I don't like to talk to a stranger."

So Billy Bunny hurried up and looked the doors and the windows and stuffed the fireplace up with a big sofa cushion. And then he took his popgun out of his knapsack and stood by the front door while Uncle Lucky shut one eye and looked through the peep-hole at the front lawn. For it was quite late, you know, and time for them to be in bed.

"I wish I knew who is coming," said Uncle Lucky, and he shut the shades and looked through the keyhole again. But still there was nobody in sight.

And then, all of a sudden, just like that, he heard a knock on the front door and a voice said, "Let me in!"

And in the next story you shall hear who it was.

Delavan July 13.—Miss Mary Williams has gone to Chicago, to spend a few days.

Miss Ida Donaldson is visiting her sister, Mrs. Anna Gregg.

Miss Anna Gregg is visiting her mother, Mrs. J. H. Gregg, this morning to see about enlisting in the marine corps.

Miss Anna Gregg is now employed at the office of the Bradley Knitting Company.

Miss Ella Williams is spending a few days in Beloit, as the guest of Mrs. Helen Sharp.

The Old Orchard property, on Sixth street, was purchased by Geo.
 Barnes, is being vastly improved. The improvements include a new porch,
 a cellar, furnace and bath.

Harley Washburn leaves soon for military service, and Mrs. Washburn will go to her home in Canada.

Marshall Crippen and wife, of Elkhorn, were calling on Delavan friends Friday.

The social which was given in the K. of H. hall, Friday evening, by the Catholic Ladies' Benevolent League, was largely attended and a good time reported by all in attendance.

Madeline Cummings Doyle, Van Alstyne, Duggan, Knight and Miss Barnes, acted as hostesses.

Sam Walters has sold his household goods and will leave today for Iowa where he will be foreman on a cattle ranch.

William Quinn, of Camp Grant, is home on a short furlough.

Patricia, a little daughter of Mr.
 and Mrs. Archie Morrissey, is ill, at this writing.

On account of the shortage of boxes at the John Wilde Milk Co., it was necessary to close the delivery department, Thursday and Friday.

PETEY DINK—YOU NEVER CAN TELL BY THE YELL THEY GIVE.

Gunner Depew

By ALBERT N. DEPEW
 Ex-Gunner and Chief Petty Officer U. S. Navy—Member of the Foreign Legion of France—Captain Gun Turret, French Battleship Cushman—Winner of the Croix de Guerre.

It was during one of these practices that the French officers wanted to find out what the Yankee gunner knew about gunnery. At a range of eight miles, while the ship was making eight knots an hour, with a fourteen-inch gun I scored three d's—that is, three direct hits out of five trials. After that there was no question about it. As a result, I was awarded three bars.

"With a Fourteen-Inch Gun I Scored Three D's."

These bars, which are strips of red braid, are worn on the left sleeve, and

Resinol
 healed that ugly skin eruption!

Resinol Ointment heals skin irritations that if neglected become serious. One small pimple or slight blotch mars the most beautiful face. A patch of itching eczema or other skin ailment causes great discomfort and much misery.

Resinol heals skin sicknesses because it contains harmless antiseptics for such conditions.

Resinol Ointment was originated by a doctor for the treatment of eczema and other skin affections, so you need not hesitate to use it. At all dealers.

signify extra marksmanship. I also received two hundred and fifty francs, or about fifty dollars in American money, and fourteen days' shore leave.

All this made me very angry, oh, very much wrought up indeed—not! I saw a merry life for myself on the French rolling wave if they felt that way about gunnery.

I spent most of my leave with my grandmother in St. Nazaire, except for a short trip I made to a star-shell factory. This factory was just about like one I saw later somewhere in America, only in the French works, all the hands were women. Only the guards were men, and they were "blesses" (wounded).

When my leave was up and I said good-by to my grandmother, she managed a smile for me, though I could see that it was pretty stiff work. And without getting soft, or anything like that, I can tell you that smile stayed with me and it did me more good than you would believe, because it gave me something good to think about when I was up against the real thing.

I hope a lot of you people who read this book are women, because I have had it in mind for some time to tell all the women I could a little thing they can do that will help a lot. I am not trying to be fancy about it, and I hope you will take it from me the way I mean it.

When you say good-by to your son or your husband or your sweetheart, work up a smile for him. What you want to do is to give him something he can think about over there, and something he will like to think about. There is so much dirt, and blood, and hunger, and cold, and all that around you, that you have just got to quit thinking about it, or you will go crazy. And so, when you can think about something nice, you can pretty nearly forget all the rest for a while. The nicest things you can think about are the things you liked back home.

Now, you can take it from me that what your boy will like to remember the best of all is your face with a smile on it. He has got enough hell on his hands without a lot of weeps to remember, if you will excuse the word. But don't forget that the chances are on his side that he gets back to you; the figures prove it. That will help you some. At that, it will be hard work; you will feel more like crying, and so will he, maybe. But smile for him. That smile is your bit.

I will back a smile against the weeps in a race to Berlin any time. So I am telling you, and I cannot make it strong enough—send him away with a smile.

CHAPTER IV.

On the Firing Line.

When I reported on the Cassard after my fourteen days' leave, I was detailed with a detachment of the legion to go to the Flanders front. I changed into the regular uniform of the legion, which is about like that of the Infantry, with the regimental badge—a seven-flamed grenade.

We traveled from Brest by rail, in third-class cars, passing through La Havre and St. Pol, and finally arriving at Berghes. From Berghes we made the trip to Dixmude by truck—a distance of about twenty miles. We carried no rations with us, but at certain places along the line the train stopped, and we got out to eat our meals. At every railroad station they have booths or counters, and French girls work day and night feeding the Pollus. It was a wonderful sight to see these girls, and it made you feel good to think you were going to fight for them.

It was not only what they did, but the way they did it, and it is at things like this that the French beat the world. They could tell just what kind of treatment each man needed, and they saw to it that he got it. They took special pains with the men of the legion, because, as they say, we are "strangers," and that means, "the best we have is yours" to the French. These French women, young and old, could be a mother and a sweetheart and a sister all at the same time to any hairy old ex-convict in the legion, and do it in a way that made him feel like a little boy at the time and a rich church member afterwards. The only thing we did not like about this trip was that there were not enough stations along that line. There is a tip that the French engineers will not take, I am afraid.

There is another thing about the French women that I have noticed, and that is this: There are pretty girls in every country under the sun, but the plain girls in France are prettier than the plain ones in other countries. They might not show it in photographs, but in action there is something about them that you cannot explain. I have never seen an ugly French girl who was not easy to look at.

We finally got to Dixmude, after having spent about eighteen hours on the way. On our arrival one company was sent to the reserve trenches and my company went to the front line trench. We were not placed in training camps, because most of us had been under fire before. I never had, but that was not supposed to make any difference. They say if you can stand the legion you can stand anything.

Before we entered the communication trench, we were drawn up along side of a crossroad for a rest, and to receive certain accoutrements. Pretty soon we saw a bunch of Boches coming along the road, without their guns, a few of them being slightly wounded. Some of them looked scared and others happy, but they all seemed tired. Then we heard some singing, and pretty soon we could see an Irish corporal stepping along behind the Hun, with his rifle slung over his back, and every once in a while he would shuffle a bit and then sing some more. He had a grin on him that pushed his ears back.

The British noncom who was detailed as our guide sang out: "What kind of time are you having, Pat?"

The Irishman saluted with one hand, dug the other into his pocket and pulled out enough watches to make you think you were in a pawn shop. "Oh, a foin toim I'm havin'," he says. "I got wan from each of them fellows." We counted fourteen prisoners in the bunch. Pat sure thought he was rolling in wealth.

After we were rested up, we were issued rifles, shrapnel helmets and belts, and then started down the communication trench. These trenches are entrances to the fighting trenches and run at varying angles and varying distances apart. They are seldom wide enough to hold more than one man, so you have to march single file in them. They wind in and out, according to the lay of the land, some parts of them being more dangerous than others. When you come to a dangerous spot you have to crawl sometimes.

There are so many cross trenches and blind alleys that you have to have a guide for a long time, because without one you are apt to walk through an emburase in a fire trench and right out into the open, between the German front line and your own. Which is hardly worth while!

If any part of the line is under fire, the guide at the head of the line is on the lookout for shells, and when he hears one coming he gives the signal and you drop to the ground and wait until it bursts. You never get all the time you want, but at that you have plenty of time to think about things while you are lying there with your face in the mud, waiting to hear the sound of the explosion. When you hear it, you know you have got at least one more to dodge. If you do not hear it—well, most likely you are worrying more about tuning your thousand-string harp than anything else.

In the communication trench you have to keep your distance from the man ahead of you. This is done so that you will have plenty of room to fall down in, and because if a shell should find the trench, there would be fewer casualties in an open formation than in a closed. The German artillery is keen on communication trenches, and whenever they spot one they stay with it a long time. Most of them are camouflaged along the top and sides, so that enemy aviators cannot see anything but the earth or bushes, when they throw an eye down on our lines.

We took over our section of the front line trenches from a French line regiment that had been on the job for 24 days. That was the longest time I have heard of any troops remaining on the firing line.

Conditions at the front and ways of fighting are changing all the time, as each side invents new methods of butchering, so when I try to describe the Dixmude trenches, you must realize that it is probably just history by now. If they are still using trenches there they probably look entirely different.

But when I was at Dixmude they were something like this:

Behind the series of front-line trenches are the reserve trenches; in this case five to seven miles away, and still farther back are the billets. These may be houses or barns or ruined churches—any place that can possibly be used for quartering troops when off duty.

Troops were usually in the front-line trenches six to eight days, and fourteen to sixteen days in the reserve trenches. Then back to the billets for six or eight days.

We were not allowed to change our clothing in the front-line trenches—no even to remove socks, unless for inspection. Nor would they let you as much as unbutton your shirt, unless there was an inspection of identification disks. We wore a disk at the wrist and another around the neck. You know the gag about the disks, of course: If your arm is blown off they can tell who you are by the neck disk; if your head is blown off, they do not care who you are.

In the reserve trenches you can make yourself more comfortable, but you cannot go to such extreme lengths of luxury as changing your clothes entirely. That is for billets, where you spend most of your time bathing, changing clothes, sleeping and eating. Believe me, a billet is great stuff; it is like a sort of temporary heaven.

Of course you know what the word "coodles" means. Let us hope you will never know what the coodles themselves mean. When you get in or near the trenches, you take a course in the natural history of bugs, lice, rats and every kind of pest that has ever been invented.

Dinner Stories

A woman had entered a newspaper office for the purpose of inserting an advertisement in the "Wants" column.

"I wish," said she to the clerk, "to put in this advertisement for a cook."

"It will go in three lines won't it?" "No, madam," said the clerk, after counting. "We shall have to charge you for four lines, but you can add four words if you wish."

"Whereupon the lady had an idea. 'Just add,'" she said. "Policeman stationed opposite corner!"

A retired army officer tells of an army examiner who had before him a very dull candidate. The man proved, apparently, unable to make response to the most simple questions, the examiner finally grew impatient and, quite sarcastically, put this question:

"Let it be supposed that you are a captain in command of infantry. In your rear is an impassable abyss. On both sides of you there are perpendicular rocks of tremendous height. In front of you lies the enemy, outnumbering you ten to one. What, sir, in such an emergency, would you do?"

"I think, sir," said the aspirant for military distinction, "I would resign."

Some of the senior boys from the Vanzhail school's literary class were taken to old Vic to see "The Merchant of Venice."

When Shylock, in the court scene was urgently demanding his pound of flesh, a bright Cockney boy, in eager tones, cried out to the judge:

"Hi, you! Ask him for his meat card."

Don't Let Catarrh Drag You into Consumption

Avoid Its Dangerous Stage.

There is a more serious stage of Catarrh than the annoyance caused by the stopped-up air passages, and the hawking and spitting and other distasteful features.

The real danger comes from the tendency of the disease to continue its course downward until the lungs become affected, and then dreaded consumption is on your path. Your own experience has taught you that the disease cannot be cured by sprays, inhalers, atomizers, jellies and other local applications.

S. S. S. has proven a most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh because it goes direct to its source, and removes the germs of the disease from the blood. Get a bottle from your druggist today, and begin the only logical treatment that gives real results. You can obtain special medical advice without charge by writing to Medical Director, 27 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta Georgia.
